From Father Raning

There is the story about the boss who called his secretary in for a job evaluation session. She'd been on the job for a while and he said, "You're the most attractive young woman we've ever had working for the company. You dress well, your fellow employees like you. You make a good impression on the customers." She was just beaming and said, "Thank you very much for those compliments." Her employer answered, "Well, enjoy them while you can because now we have to talk about your typing, your spelling and your punctuation!"

In his famous book, "The Screwtape Letters," C. S. Lewis writes about the senior devil giving advice to the junior devils on how to mislead all of us folks here on earth. At one point, the senior devil says to the junior devils, "The Church is a fertile field for leading people astray. You just have to keep them bickering over details, bickering over money, arguing over organisational matters, over property, over personal hurts and misunderstandings. But there is one thing you must absolutely prevent. Never let them see the banners flying. Never let them see the glory!"

First Reading:	Wisdom infused God's creative work. Which wonders of creation inspire me to marvel and praise God, the Creator?
Second Reading:	St. Paul boasts of his afflictions because they build character and God's love. What hardships have revealed God's love for me?
Gospel:	The Holy Spirit will guide us to all truth. With what difficulties do I most need the Spirit's guidance today?
